Description

Charming little terracotta depicting a music lesson, with a young woman seated playing the guitar, and a young child at her feet, all dressed in costumes inspired by China and India This lovely little subject is directly inspired by François Boucher's 18th-century compositions, such as the Chinese garden, both in the paintings and in the tapestries and other terracottas...Our subject is presented in good condition, on a gilded wooden plinth carved to shape and in a glass cage on all sides The whole is of the most beautiful decorative effect and in the theme of the chinoiseries of the XVIII very in vogue at this time! Work of the XIX, qualitythe terracotta measures 12.5 by 12 long
