Description

Strips table lamp, designed by 1970s Scandinavian design icons Flemming Brylle and Preben Jacobsen. This sculptural piece features a lampshade composed of white plastic slats arranged in strata, creating a subtle interplay of volumes and light diffusion. The transparent plastic structure adds visual lightness and modernity, while revealing the object's internal construction. The whole rests on a stable base with curved lines, reinforcing its futuristic, architectural allure. Edited in Italy (switch marked "made in Italy"), this lamp testifies to the international influence of Nordic design at the time. An iconic piece, both functional and decorative, ideal for a vintage design collection or a contemporary interior in search of a strong graphic accent.
