Description

Circular dining table in molded glass and crystal, resting on a sculptural base formed of large stylized leaves blossoming into a corolla. The thick glass top is supported by a chromed steel structure, ensuring stability and visual lightness, stability and lightness, and rests on a translucent crystal base. The crystal captures and diffuses light, creating a particularly elegant play of reflections. The base, the central element of the composition, is in keeping with the formal vocabulary developed by Marc Lalique for Lalique, combining naturalist inspiration and clean lines. The combination of crystal and chromed metal reflects a quest for balance between decorative tradition and modernity, characteristic of Lalique creations. Lalique creations of the second half of the XXe
