Description

Two figures, ink, pen and watercolor drawing on paper.Leonor Fini (1907-1996) was a French artist of Argentinean origin, distinguished by her rich and singular career. A completely independent spirit, she frequented the Surrealists without ever fully adhering to the group. She developed a highly personal dreamlike universe, blending mythology, symbolism and unsettling sensuality. Her life mirrored her art, oscillating between society parties and retreats. Marked by a taste for staging and cross-dressing, she was often disguised, embodying the "theatricality of life". The drawing presented here is typical of Leonor Fini's work, with its theatrical atmosphere and latent eroticism.Frame size : 55x48
