Description

Empire period cabinet, in solid walnut, dating from the early 19th century. This cabinet is distinguished by its architectural sobriety and balanced lines, characteristic of the Empire style. The front opens with two paneled doors, framed by turned detached columns, bringing rhythm and verticality to the whole (interior with 3 shelves). The top rail features a doucet cutout embellished with a central carved motif, emphasizing the fine craftsmanship. The walnut wood offers a beautiful warm blond patina, with visible, harmonious veining.
