Description

An extendable oval table dating from the late 19th century, crafted from fine, intricately carved thuja burl. The tabletop features a beautiful, warm, and uniform grain, enhanced by a refined border inlay that accentuates its elegance. The structure rests on four tapered legs in solid wood, embellished with decorative gilt-bronze floral motifs, typical of the high-end cabinetmaking of the period. The central extension allows for a convenient increase in the tabletop's surface area, making the table suitable for both everyday use and formal settings. A table of great charm and quality, ideal for classic or eclectic settings, perfect as a centerpiece in a prestigious dining room. Period: Late 19th Century Materials: Thuja burl, solid wood, gilded bronze Condition: Excellent, with normal signs of aging consistent
