Description

suite of 6 chairs known as "raquettes", of Louis XVI style, made in mahogany and dating from the late 19th century, circa 1880. These chairs are distinguished by their racket-shaped backrests, typical of this sought-after model, offering a line that is both sober and refined. The structure rests on tapered and fluted feet, faithful to Louis XVI vocabulary, with a belt adorned with discreet carved friezes. The seats and backrests are upholstered in traditional canework, bringing visual lightness and comfort, while highlighting the woodwork.
