Description

An important and magnificent Louis XV chest of drawers made in Paris around the mid-18th century, bearing the stamp and signature of master cabinetmaker Jean-Baptiste Tuart. This piece, of extraordinary craftsmanship, is veneered in precious rosewood and amaranth, featuring elegant marquetry motifs and herringbone grain patterns. The richly detailed, finely chiseled gilt-bronze applications, gilded with mercury, adorn the uprights, handles, and molded profiles, lending the piece an elegance characteristic of the great Parisian cabinetmaking of the 18th century. The original breccia marble top, with its warm tones, completes the sumptuous harmony of the ensemble. An outstanding example of French craftsmanship of the period, this chest of drawers combines refined proportions with the
