Description

An elegant Neapolitan Louis XV chest of drawers, crafted in the mid-18th century from fine violet and rosewood, finely inlaid with refined and harmonious taste. The undulating lines, characteristic of both the front and sides, fully embody the rocaille style of the period. The piece features two large drawers with handles and pull-knobs in gilded bronze, crafted with great refinement, which further enhance the structure. Completing the composition is the original top in yellow Siena marble, with warm natural veins, perfectly shaped to follow the sinuous movement of the body. A fine example of 18th-century Neapolitan cabinetmaking, combining the aesthetic refinement and masterful craftsmanship of the era. Period: Mid-18th century; Provenance: Naples; Dimensions: Height 94 cm; Width 145
