Description

A rare lot of original glazed majolica flooring on a terracotta base, dating back to around 1830 and attributable to the "Fabbrica Privileggiata dei Colonesi" factory, as evidenced by the oval mark impressed on the back of the tiles. The flooring features a complete composition of great value, consisting of: * a modular field decorated with stylized floral motifs, featuring elegant plant elements and vibrant colors * a prominent central polychrome rosette, featuring a radial design of foliage and ornamental motifs, conceived as the visual fulcrum of the entire decorative scheme. This combination identifies the flooring as a true "architectural ceramic carpet," typical of early 19th-century Southern Italian production, combining decorative tradition and late Neoclassical taste. The tiles, made of solid
