Description

Small Bohemian crystal vase with acid-etched decoration - late 19th century
Charming small vase in violet-tinted Bohemian crystal, with acid-etched decoration on a frosted background. The body features a finely engraved frieze in reserve, featuring a female figure interacting with a lion, in an allegorical spirit, as well as other human figures treated in the neoclassical taste. The entire decoration, delicately acid-etched, stands out elegantly against a white satin-finish background, creating a subtle, refined contrast. The lower section, in clear crystal cut to pans, brings relief and luminosity to the piece, while geometric and ornamental friezes harmoniously underline the overall composition. This type of work, characteristic of late 19th-century Bohemian
