Description

A rare early 18th-century (circa 1700-1740) lacquered Dutch chinoiserie-style cabinet, created on a deep black background and richly decorated with finely hand-painted gilded Chinese scenes. Resting on its original base, it boasts a beautiful antique patina that testifies to its authenticity and character. The interior features two drawers, while the lower section includes an external drawer, offering practical storage space while respecting the traditional construction of early Dutch cabinets. The back panel has been restored, ensuring its stability. The cabinet shows traces of wear and use normal for its age, attesting to over three centuries of history and reinforcing its antique charm.
