Description

Amber carved subject - Chinese figure and monkey, Asian work, 19th century
Elegant subject carved in natural amber, representing a seated Chinese figure, accompanied by a monkey at his side, resting on a stylized rock embellished with plant elements. The typically Asian composition evokes the symbolic imagination of the Far East, where the monkey is often associated with intelligence, mischief and protection. The central figure, treated with gentleness, displays features characteristic of traditional Chinese iconography. The amber, of fine quality, offers superb translucent shades ranging from deep honey to orange tones, revealed by the light. The sculptural work enhances volumes and details, particularly facial expressions and coat rendering. This type of piece, made in Asia in the
