Description

An exceptional and rare 18th-century Dutch bookcase, dating from the late 18th century, circa 1760-1780. This impressive piece of furniture combines elegance, craftsmanship and functionality, making it an outstanding centerpiece for both classic and modern interiors.Made from beautifully grained wood veneer, the bookcase features rich carved details, including an elegant crest, refined moldings and imposing cabriole legs finished with claws. A magnificent example of high quality Dutch craftsmanship of the period.The upper section is fitted with three shelves, each with plate rails, ideal for displaying porcelain, books or decorative objects. The doors are currently glazed, with glass panels added later. This modification was carried out with professionalism
