Description

This oak upholstered armchair embodies the nobility and architectural rigor of the Louis XIII style. Its straight silhouette, carried by a solidly pegged twisted H-shaped base, asserts the robustness characteristic of this period, while the turned armrests and molded uprights testify to exacting craftsmanship. Oak offers deep warmth and authentic presence. A magnificent pediment is carved with large acanthus leaves. The upholstered seat and back provide unexpected comfort for a ceremonial chair, and invite us to rediscover the sober elegance of classic interiors. The tapestry bears some signs of time, featuring autumnal-colored motifs. A piece of character, this armchair naturally finds its place in a refined setting, whether a traditional salon, a collector's study or a contemporary interior seeking a strong
