Description

Gaston Thiery (1922-2013) First snow between Felletin and Gentioux Crozant school Oil on canvas signed lower right, depicting a winter landscape in the Limousin, located between Felletin and Gentioux, in the heart of the lands dear to the Crozant School. The artist captures with finesse the silent atmosphere of the first snows: a hilly landscape covered in a white mantle, enlivened by a few trees with foliage still tinged with autumn. The composition, balanced and luminous, plays on the subtle contrasts between the cold tones of the snow and the warm hues of the trees and undergrowth. The brushstroke is supple and controlled, reflecting a beautiful sensitivity to light and space, in the post-impressionist landscape tradition specific to the Crozant School. A work full of poetry and
