

Mediterranean Oil On Canvas, 20th Century

Description

Oil on canvas depicting a lively Mediterranean port, probably inspired by southern France or Italy. The scene shows several fishing boats with brightly colored hulls (reds, blues, ochres) moored in the foreground, their masts forming a highly dynamic graphic tangle. In the background stands massive church- or cathedral-like architecture, bathed in warm light, with orange-tiled roofs. The whole is treated in a bright, vibrant atmosphere. The brushstroke is thick and highly expressive (marked impasto), with a rich, contrasting palette. Water is rendered in rapid, colorful brushstrokes, creating almost abstract reflections. This technique evokes a painting post-impressionist or expressionist, typical of the twentieth century. The work is presented in a classically styled molded and
