Description

Silver demi-croix plate engraved with the arms of Louis-Philippe duc d'Orléans under crown of prince of the blood and background of bundles of flags. Early 19th-century work by silversmith Jean-Baptiste-Claude Odiot. The Odiot archives mention on July 11, 1817 that the Duc d'Orléans had his coat of arms embossed on one hundred and thirty-three pieces and engraved on two hundred and five others, of which this dish is probably one. This was just before his return from exile the following year and his inheritance from his mother of the large Penthièvre-Orléans service, which he had restored by the Odiot firm.
