Description

Giltwood carved console table, 19th century - red veined marble top Beautiful, richly carved and gilded wood scone console, French work of the 19th century, in the taste of the Louis XV style. The decorated with an openwork design centered on a shell, framed by finely chased foliage and scrolls. The elegantly elegantly curved, are joined by a scalloped spacer with openwork openwork decoration, conferring lightness and balance to the whole. The top is made of veined red marble, molded in a corbin beak pattern, in perfect harmony with the richness of the gilding. Very beautiful quality of sculpture, with meticulous detailing and relief work details and reliefs, characteristic of nineteenth-century decorative productions inspired by the eighteenth. Era: 19th century Style: Louis
