Description

This exquisite antique box, made in the late 19th and early 20th centuries, is a fine example of decorative art and functionality. The box is made of thick, carefully polished glass, which gives the piece a noble depth and lustre. All the edges of the glass are framed by an elegant brass outline, which enhances its refinement and adds an extra touch of sophistication to the design. Inside the box, there is a small hook intended for hanging earrings - a detail that underlines the practicality and functionality of the object. The inner bottom of the box is lined with dark velvet, adding a special charm while protecting the jewelry. The outer bottom is adorned with enamel paint, making this piece unique and testifying to the skill of its creator. There are two small imperfections on the back wall glass. We will be
