Description

An elegant mid-19th-century card table made of walnut veneer. The piece features a simple yet refined design, with tapered turned legs and a pleasing grain pattern on the tabletop and apron. The tabletop is fold-out: it opens like a book, doubling the playing surface--a typical feature of game tables from that era. The structure is solid and well-preserved, with a pleasant patina that highlights the quality of the wood and the original craftsmanship. An authentic and functional piece, perfect for furnishing classic interiors, entryways, living rooms, or studies with a touch of vintage charm. Dimensions: available upon request. Condition: excellent, consistent with the period, showing slight signs of age.
