Description

Superb Napoleon III period curved window, made in mahogany, dating from the second half of the XIXth century. This refined piece of furniture captivates with its elegantly flowing silhouette, typical of the Napoleon III style, as well as its rich carved decoration. The front, in a slight curve, opens through two glass doors, allowing the ideal showcasing of the objects on display. The frames are finely molded and adorned with delicately carved rocaille motifs. The upper part is topped by a gradin with richly carved openwork shelves, forming an elegant display case, with volutes, interlacing and central cartouche. The set rests on a curved base embellished with carved decoration on the front, bringing beautiful harmony to the composition. Features Era: Napoleon III (19th century) Wood:
