Description

Charming and rare bronze carousel set from Vienna, signed Franz Xaver Bergman, dating from the 19th century.This delicate piece illustrates all the expertise of the Viennese workshops, renowned for their finely chased animal bronzes often tinged with a playful touch. The merry-go-round features small figures - here miniature animals - suspended from chains, each richly detailed and treated with great precision.The whole is enhanced by polychrome and gilding, with a painted decoration evoking a funfair scene, bringing dynamism and character to the composition. The bronze's nuanced patina underlines the quality of execution and authentic charm of this work.An object that is both decorative and a curiosity, typical of 19th-century Viennese production, highly sought-after by
