Description

Italian walnut oratory cabinet Early 18th century. Charming Italian oratory cabinet, a typical piece of furniture found in Italian palaces and fine Italian homes. Still in the spirit of the Haute Epoque, this small cabinet dates from the early 18th century. Quite rustic in design, it is nonetheless highly decorative. The walnut is a superb warm blond with a beautiful waxed patina. It is trapezoidal in shape, with a main body opening onto a molded drawer and door at the front. The walnut plank top is molded with a corbin beak surmounting a frieze of serrated piastres and tops the main body. That is, the molded drawer adorned with a wooden pull knob with a typically Italian assembly on the inside, which is also made of fir. The drawer surmounts a beautiful walnut lingotière surmounting the part comprising the
