Description

A polished malachite egg, featuring  color ranging from light green to dark green, with banding created by subtle shades of color. Since ancient times, this stone has often been used as a talisman to ward off the evil eye, misfortune, and negative energies.The Romans believed that malachite could protect against lightning. Greek soldiers wore it on their wrists or around their necks to prevent injuries on the battlefield. In the Middle Ages, it was said to ward off the evil eye and protect children from childhood illnesses.
