Description

A collector's item from Asia in the 19th century, mounted in bronze for decoration, this beautiful Imari ginger pot from Japan was destined for salon decoration under the Second Empire. This beautiful and imposing vase is richly decorated with birds, flowers and various stylized ornaments in beautiful colors of red, blue and gold on a white background. The hat is enriched by a high collar, an element that leaves no one indifferent by its nobility and the richness of its finely painted decoration.
