Description

Very attractive Renaissance-style two-corner sideboard with a showcase on the upper part. The lower part rests on four legs. The front opens with two leaves richly carved in high relief and decorated with two masks in cartouches, topped by a large transverse drawer with an amusing grotesque head handle. The jambs are adorned with grotesques, while the sides are decorated with a sculpture contained within a rectangular molding. The upper part is glazed on the sides and opens onto the front with two doors, also glazed and decorated with piaster grapes. The jambs are covered with caryatids. The pediment is carved with interlaces, masks and shells on the sides. This buffet-vitrine was made in the second half of the 19th century in the Neo-Renaissance style, which was very fashionable at the time. This piece of
