Description

Pair of 17th-century bronze candlesticks, 19th century, Spain. Beautiful execution for these objects made in four parts assembled by screwing. The tripod base features three strongly curved faces, fitted with a fillet cartouche and camped on scrolled feet. The shaft, fitted with several rings, tapers upwards to support a wide, grooved cup, itself fixed by the urn-shaped socket. Scattered scratches and very acceptable wear from use, slight deformation to the cups, traces of oxidation (see detail photos). Note: The thick, bright bronze approaches the quality of 17th-century models, with one detail that sets them apart: the more regular threads and screw threads. Significant weight: 5.200 kilograms. Delivery: EUR20 for mainland France.
