Description

Louis XVI period writing desk opening on the front with a flap and four drawers. Made of solid walnut, it features an elegant front decorated with marquetry fillets highlighting a beautiful grain. The flap reveals a refined interior comprising a green leather-covered top, five small drawers, a shelf as well as four secret drawers, testifying to meticulous and functional workmanship. The piece is embellished with bronze handles and lock escutcheons with pearl decoration and draped bows, characteristic of the Louis XVI style. It rests on a tapered base. The set is sold with its original keys and a functional lock. There are a few old restorations and traces of use, normal for its age, which contribute to its authenticity and charm.
