Description

This oil on canvas signed C. Bustad and dated 1928 unfolds a maritime scene of great elegance, where several sailing ships glide across a calm sea under a sky shaded in gray and light, creating an atmosphere both peaceful and majestic. Sails in muted tones - browns, greens and weathered grays - stand out subtly against the horizon, while in the foreground a dark boat, inhabited by discreet silhouettes, lends depth and presence to the composition. On the right, a smaller boat with red-clad fishermen draws the eye and introduces a vibrant note that energizes the whole. The delicately impressionistic workmanship captures the reflections of the water and the gentleness of the wind with a rare sensitivity, testifying to masterful pictorial craftsmanship. The work is enhanced by a richly ornate gilded wood frame,
