Description

Superb figure of Christ on the cross (Corpus Christi) in finely chased, fire-gilded bronze, dating from the late 16th century. The sculpture is distinguished by its expressive, naturalistic execution, characteristic of late Renaissance production. The slender body of Christ presents a carefully modeled anatomy, with particular attention paid to facial detail, wavy hair and delicately draped perizonium. The wide-spread arms and bowed head convey a dramatic and spiritual intensity typical of the period. The original gilding, now partially worn, reveals in places the brown patina of the bronze, giving the whole a beautiful depth and added authenticity. The sculpture is mounted on a modern, sober and elegant presentation pedestal for optimal presentation. Size: 21 cm (head to toe) Condition:
