Oil on canvas by Marguerite Crissay 19thPainting having been restored several times. Figurative oil on canvas depicting two female nudes, one seated from the front and the other standing from the back, in an intimate setting.The composition plays on the contrast between the central vertical figure and the lower pose, creating a real visual rhythm.Gentle, muted palette (browns, bluish grays, rosy complexions) that gives a hushed atmosphere.Sensitive treatment of volumes and skin, with fades that emphasize pictorial matter rather than detail.Large, decorative format, ideal for a classic or eclectic interior.Marguerite Crissay (19th century).Work presented as an oil on canvas by the artist, with a studio subject around the study of the nude.Discover all our other products on our website:
