Description

A masterpiece of Lombard cabinetmaking The timeless charm of the 17th century comes alive in this extraordinary Lombard chest of drawers, a piece that embodies the elegance and solidity of antique Italian furniture. Crafted with a level of artisanal skill that is virtually impossible to find today, this piece represents a sound investment for those who wish to enhance their home with an object of great historical value. First and foremost, the solid walnut construction ensures a sturdiness that has withstood the test of time, maintaining a truly deep natural luster. Technical details and fine materials The surface is enriched with refined decorations; in fact, the inlays are made of maple, olive burl, and walnut, materials that create color contrasts of rare beauty. Furthermore, the chest of drawers is in excellent overall condition, with minimal signs of age that attest to its authenticity without compromising its aesthetics. As for dimensions, the piece measures 60x140xh98 cm, a substantial size that allows it to furnish any room with authority, from the formal living room to the bedroom. Impeccable Quality and Condition In addition to its visual beauty, the internal craftsmanship--typical of late 17th-century Lombard workshops--must be highlighted. Consequently, every drawer slides with precision, preserving its original functionality. For this reason, collectors and interior designers seek out similar pieces, as they harmonize seamlessly with both classic and modern furnishings. Similarly, the original patina has been carefully preserved, so the wood still exudes all its original warmth.
