Description

Antique Persian Senneh floral rug | 110 years | Wool | 190 x 130 cm This antique Persian Senneh floral rug is distinguished by its dense, refined decoration, entirely punctuated by a repetition of stylized floral motifs. Its deep midnight-blue field is illuminated by delicate shades of ivory, antique rose, celadon blue and soft beige, creating an elegant and subtle composition. Originating from the Senneh region, this antique rug reveals all the decorative finesse typical of Persian pieces sought after for their precision of design and visual balance. The absence of a large central medallion here reinforces the effect of a floral all-over, ideal for bringing depth, texture and sophistication to an interior. About 110 years old, this rug possesses the charm of fine antique pieces, with a discreet yet highly distinguished decorative presence. Knotted in wool, it is equally suited to a living room, study, library or bedroom, where it will bring warmth, history and authenticity. This antique Senneh rug seems to carry with it the patience of another time. Its repeated, almost hypnotic pattern evokes refined interiors where every detail counted. After more than a century, it retains that quiet elegance that immediately lends character to a room.
