Description

Pair of light mid-century Italian bedside tables in elm, glass and brass, 1950sThese bright and cheerful bedside tables are distinguished by their many details.The body features clean, straight lines, but all edges are rounded.The drawers (with an internal height of 5 cm) are adorned with a black thread inlay on the front.The legs attached to the body have a slightly flared shape, and the rear leg is extended upwards. A clear, rounded glass top rests on the top.Above is a silver-gray glass mirror with an original inscription on the back.The legs have brass tips at their ends, slightly offset forward like a cat's paw. A decorative handle and a round brass cap screw on the side panel complete the decorative brass elements. This furniture is at once classic, modern and extremely decorative.Shelf height 1 = 45 cm
