Description

Pair of early 19th-century portraits, in the Shabby chic spirit. To the left, a man is depicted in a three-quarter-length bust, wearing a dark double-breasted suit and a white shirt with a high collar, typical of early XIXe century fashion. His expression is sober and reserved, conveying a certain bourgeois dignity. To the right, a woman is depicted in a similar posture. She wears a brown dress adorned with a colorful shawl and a fine lace collar. Her elaborate hairstyle, embellished with curls, and discreet jewelry, testify to a comfortable social status. A flowering vase appears in the background, adding a decorative and symbolic touch. Some missing parts on the frames, painting in good condition except for very small missing parts on the background of the man's portrait. Shipping France 30EUR
