Description

Solid elm table with rectangular top and braced legs, selected for the Les Arcs ski resort. More rarely seen in this species, this elm version features rich veining and a warm tone, reinforcing the presence of the model. The simple, robust structure is fully in keeping with the functional vocabulary developed for high-altitude facilities. A mountain enthusiast, Charlotte Perriand spent 20 years (1967-1989) designing and furnishing the resort of Les Arcs in the French Alps.
