

Engraved Glass Ewer With Silver-plated Metal Frame - 19th Century

180 EUR

Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Crystal

Height : 24,5cm

Description

Elegant ewer composed of a blown glass body, delicately engraved with plant motifs and scrolls, resting on a slightly gadrooned base. The glass features beautiful fluid-cut work, creating a subtle play of light. The richly chased silver-plated metal mount adopts a Rocaille-style decoration with scrolls, shells and foliage. It features an ornate spout, a hinged lid topped by a finely worked grip, and a sinuous scrolled handle typical of 19th-century taste. The ensemble offers a harmonious contrast between the transparency of the glass and the decorative density of the metal, testifying to meticulous workmanship and a fine balance of form. Good overall condition, see photos. Height: 24.5cm
