Description

The Kodak No.1 Pocket Junior "blue" is a folding camera produced by Eastman Kodak between 1929 and 1933. The bellows are also blue; the shape of the kickstand and the typography used to inscribe the word Kodak on it is Art Deco-inspired. This model uses 120 film, allowing six exposures of 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 inch format without reloading. It is equipped with a Meniscus Achromatic lens and a Kodo shutter offering instant and timed exposures. Note that the colored versions, including the blue one, were only available in the USA; in Europe, only the black model was marketed. link to <https://www.lavalisearlesienne.com/product-page/pocket-kodak-no-1-junior-bleue-mod%C3%A8le-b>
