Description

Beautiful large canvas on keyed stretcher from the late 19th century, depicting a proud gabled and half-timbered house in the middle of a wooded area with high trunks and attractive foliage. An atmosphere emanates from this large-scale work, with diffused light and a deliberate blur, by the Ecole de Barbizon painter I Théodore, a decorative and inspired painting that is easy to place in between two walls due to its size, sufficient without a frame. A successful work with a delicate composition where the imagination is carried away, ideal for a limited-width wall to decorate simply and soberly with an inspired and delicate work, in very good condition and highly decorative with fluid paint in soft tones easy to place, that of a suggested landscape painted around 1890... A beautiful
