Description

Altar candelabrum, late 18th century
Refined altar candelabrum dating from the late 18th century, crafted from finely carved wood and decorated with a precious gold leaf finish. The structure features an elegant horizontal design with five candle holders, embellished with rich scrollwork, foliage, and cartouches in the late Baroque/Neoclassical style. The central element features an openwork ornamental motif, perfectly balanced by sinuous and harmonious side arms. The warm, luminous gilding retains an original patina consistent with the period, which enhances its historical charm and authenticity. An object of great decorative impact, ideal for collectors, reception areas, historic residences, or prestigious scenographic installations. Period: late 18th century
Material: carved wood gilded with gold
