Description

A charming 19th-century French side table, this small piece of furniture combines elegance with the patina of time. Made of wood and finished in a deep black, it features a scalloped top adorned with delicate gilding, giving it a refined, almost precious presence. Its single drawer, with its textured front and small round knob, combines functionality and elegance. Resting on gracefully curved legs, the table embodies the lightness and refinement of French craftsmanship of the period. Its surface and edges bear a few light traces of use, testifying to its age and only accentuating its authenticity and old-world charm. Perfect as a bedside table, an occasional piece in a living room or a pedestal table in an entryway, this 19th-century French side table brings a poetic blend of charm, functionality and historic warmth
