Description

An elegant pair of decorative columns in fine Rosso Levanto marble, dating from the late 19th century. Characterized by refined turned and fluted craftsmanship, they feature a structure composed of a molded quadrangular base, a fluted shaft, and a classic-style capital, richly decorated with carved vertical motifs. Rosso Levanto marble, renowned for its intense reddish-brown hues crisscrossed by natural white veins, lends these pieces a striking visual impact and extraordinary elegance. Originally designed as ornamental columns or indoor plant stands, they are now prized decorative accents, ideal for classical interiors, grand entryways, living rooms, or antique collections. The quality of craftsmanship and the harmony of the proportions attest to the excellent Italian artisanal
