Description

Ring in 750/°° 18 KT yellow gold designed all in contrasts...a large pink coral cabochon known as "angel skin" in its center is enhanced by brilliant-cut diamonds, playing on contrasts of form, material, color, brilliance...The stone, finely polished, reveals subtle internal veins and variations in tone, signatures of its organic origin and guarantee of authenticity, lending the whole a delicate, lively depth. The soft lines of the framing claws support the evocation of the organic universe. These lines contrast with a ring body of more structured lines, openworked in three parts set with lines of brilliant-cut diamonds. Worn, the composition favors the presence of the stones: the gaze is naturally captured by the coral and diamonds, the metal fading into the background in favor of a luminous, airy effect, despite the
