Description

Modernist enfilade from the 1950s-1960s, attributed to Georges Frydman, a French designer renowned for his sleek creations blending wood and metal. This piece features a teak veneer structure in beautiful warm hues, highlighted by aluminum frames and rails that reinforce its resolutely modern aesthetic. The upper part features two open niches, while the lower part is closed by two sliding doors concealing a practical storage space. The whole rests on a slender metal base, typical of the design of this period. A piece of furniture with sober, functional lines, ideal for a vintage or contemporary interior. Era: Century 1950-1960 Attribution: Georges Frydman Materials: teak, aluminum, metal Dimensions: Length: 174 cm Height: 107 cm Depth: 44 cm Condition: Good overall
