Description

An elegant Louis XV "Cartel" wall clock, made in France around the mid-18th century. The piece features a finely lacquered wooden frame, embellished with rich applications of chiseled gilded bronze, characterized by elegant rocaille motifs, volutes, and floral decorations typical of the French Rococo style. The circular dial, crafted from white enameled porcelain, features Roman numerals for the hours and Arabic numerals for the minutes, with highly refined openwork hands in gilded bronze. The clock's dynamic and dramatic silhouette lends the piece a strong decorative impact, enhanced by the quality of the carving and the refined polychromatic lacquerwork. An example of high-quality 18th-century French cabinetmaking, this important Louis XV clock is a prestigious piece
