Description

Pair of Restauration-period (circa 1820) chased and guilloched gilt bronze candlesticks mounted as cordless lamps. Circular bases. The cordless bulbs are new, and can be controlled via the remote controls that are supplied or directly with the buttons present on the bulbs. The magnetic base system makes it easy to remove the bulb from the top of the lampshade in order to recharge it via a USB-C cable. This system is ideal for using these lamps on tables indoors or outdoors, but also in areas without sockets. New brass lampholder. The pagoda-shaped lampshades were created from engravings on the theme of the Bay of Naples in the taste of the Grand Tour's early 19th-century Neapolitan gouaches.
