Description

Empire-style chest of three drawers, Italy, Emilia region, 19th century. Crafted from solid walnut and walnut veneer, it stands out for its understated elegance and harmonious proportions, typical of the 19th-century Emilia Empire style. The piece features three large drawers with fronts showcasing the striking grain of walnut burl, embellished with original gilded bronze handles and vents. The ebonized side columns, with brass finials, lend architectural grace and evoke the decorative canons of the Empire style. The top, also veneered in walnut like the body of the piece, further highlights the quality of the materials and the excellent craftsmanship. The warm patina of the wood attests to its authenticity and the charm it has acquired over time. A piece with great visual
