Description

The Excellence of Neapolitan Sculpture in a New Light This splendid bronze lamp featuring a young fisherman represents a rare opportunity among my offerings for discerning collectors.

The work is attributed to the renowned Neapolitan artist Giovanni Varlese, a leading figure of the Neapolitan school of sculpture. First and foremost, the statue depicts a young fisherman standing on a rock, captured in the vibrant moment as he holds a fish in his hand.

Indeed, this casting from the second half of the 19th century captures with surprising realism the anatomical details and expressiveness typical of 19th-century realism. Technical Details and Aesthetic Value Created in Italy at the end of the 19th century, the lamp stands out for its perfect balance between art and functionality. The bronze structure measures 30x20 cm with a total height of 40 cm and is topped by an elegant fabric shade that diffuses a warm and welcoming light. Furthermore, the bronze's original patina has been carefully preserved, highlighting every single detail of the rock and the figure. Consequently, this piece is not merely a light fixture but a true artistic investment capable of enhancing any desk or formal setting.
