Description

Charming oil on strong cardboard depicting an elegant scene in a classically inspired park, enlivened by strolling figures and female figures dressed in the fashion of the early XXe century. The composition, bathed in soft, luminous light, features garden architecture in the neoclassical taste - colonnades, pergola and groves - evoking aristocratic gardens or mundane promenades of the Belle Époque. The silhouettes, treated with finesse and spontaneity, bring rhythm and depth to the whole. The touch is free, vibrant, almost impressionistic in places, with beautiful work on the light filtering through the foliage and animating the perspectives. Work dated 1913 and bearing a signature lower right, to be deciphered. Era: dated 1913. Technique: oil on strong cardboard. Subject : lively park scene,
